Dover Harbour Board says it has taken steps to reduce the amount of light that is wasted at the Port of Dover by using downward-angled light fittings and cutting the amount of energy used, but Dark Skies campaigners believe that more can be done to enable the area's residents to see the night sky clearly.

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

PEOPLE in Dover are being denied the chance to see thousands of stars by light pollution from the port.

The site is a major culprit in wasting light, which is ruining our night skies, according to Dark Skies campaigners.

Bob Mizen, of the Campaign For Dark Skies, said: "When I was on the cliffs I could see light from the docks, which was shining upwards."

"They have said they need lights for security, but the lights should be shining downwards. There aren't any lorries in the sky."

A report by the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution says light pollution can be caused by poor lighting design or by a high concentration of bulbs in one place.

Avoidable

In the 2009 paper Artificial Light In The Environment, the commission states: "Light pollution is an important and avoidable consequence of poor lighting design, often exacerbated (especially in the case of floodlighting) by poor installation and maintenance."

"These factors result in light shining outwards and upwards into the sky... where it often reflects off moisture and very fine particulate matter in the air, giving rise to sky glow."

Dover Harbour Board says it has taken steps to reduce the effect of lights on the night sky.

A spokesman said: "The Port of Dover completed a major project last year to reconfigure all of the high-mast lighting in the Eastern Docks, reducing the number of masts from 41 to 30 to reduce light pollution. Using the latest

Digital pictures released in bid to identify body found on Jersey

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

THE BODY of a man washed up on a beach has sparked an international appeal to identify him.

The remains of the man were found on a beach in Jersey in February 2008 and it is believed it could have drifted in from the English Channel, as well as the western approaches or the north Brittany coast.

An electronic image of how the man may have looked has been constructed by experts in the hope that it will help identify him.

Extensive enquiries have taken place but the body does not match any missing person reports on the island and no identification was found with the remains of the man, who is believed to have been in his 30's.

Head of CID at the States of Jersey Police, Detective Inspector Chris Beechey, said: "This is an unusual case.

"We are very keen to get this man's body back to his family if he has a family, and to his homeland, to ensure he is finally laid to rest.

"A facial reconstruction of the man was undertaken using a CT scan of the head and neck of the deceased by experts at the University of Dundee.

"The team there has produced a series of stills and an animated sequence of what it is believed the deceased would have looked like in life.

"It is suggested that he would have been likely to have been white European, Asian (from the Indian sub-continent), Middle Eastern or North African in origin.

"Remnants of skin and tissue around the neck indicated that the deceased had a beard when he died.

"It was not possible to determine what his head hair would have been like."

Samples of hair, tooth, nail and bone tissue have been examined and results suggest the man would have spent most of his life in a hot and arid climate, most likely around the Horn of Africa, Yemen, Oman or the United Arab Emirates.

DI Beechey said: "Hours of intensive and detailed work have produced a virtual reconstruction of the head of the man.

"We are very grateful to the people who have assisted us in this case, especially the team at the University of Dundee, Cellmark Forensic Services, Interpol, the Missing Person's Bureau in the UK, the dentist who assisted us locally, and Avon and Somerset Police who undertook the fingerprint work for us, and also the staff at Jersey General Hospital, who assisted with the CT scan and everyone involved in the enquiries so far.

"We hope that by making this appeal, now that we have done all the enquiries we can, that someone recognises the man and can contact us so he can be laid to rest properly, and with dignity."

Stowaways caught by border agency

A SNIFFER dog has helped thwart illegal stowaways from crossing the Channel and entering the UK through Dover.

A gang of four would-be illegal immigrants were discovered on Sunday, November 13, by UK Border Agency (UKBA) staff in Calais after they were alerted by their sniffer dog.

A thorough search of the Turkish registered lorry revealed four Eritreans, two men and two women, were hiding among the polyester film in the trailer.

The following day, UKBA officers in Coquelles searched a Polish lorry delivering mushrooms to Yorkshire after discovering it was not secured properly. Inside the lorry, which was waiting for a Dover-bound ferry, four Vietnamese men, two Iranian men and an Iranian woman were found.

Carole Upshall, UKBA's director for European operations, said: "Finds such as this one highlight the determination and expertise required by our officers to stay one step ahead of illegal immigration.

"The UK Border Agency's strong presence at the frontier, not only in the UK but also in northern France, helps protect the whole country from people illegally entering the UK and then heading for places across Britain – in these cases Ripon and Bridlington."

Educational frolics for the family at museum

DOVER Museum is hosting a family activity day at the weekend.

Adults and children are invited to the museum to take part in a workshop, which will see families create personalised calendars for 2011.

The session takes place this Saturday and runs from 10am through to 4.30pm.

There is no additional cost for the workshop, although standard admission fees apply.

Dover District residents can gain free admission into the museum with proof of address.

Community service

A WOMAN has been given 80 hours of community service and a £200 fine after being found guilty of actual bodily harm.

Cheryl Weatherly, 46, of Edred Road, Dover, was charged with ABH to a man and a woman on Monday, October 11.

Weatherly was sentenced on November 11, at Channel court, Folkestone, for two counts of actual bodily harm.

Magistrates sentenced Weatherly to 80 hours unpaid work, and ordered she pay £200 compensation plus court costs of £85.

Petition launched in bid to save petrol station

STAFF at a petrol station in Dover have started a petition in a bid to save it from closure.

The Buckland Mill Esso service station on Crabble Hill will close its doors for the final time on February 1, 2011, after bosses at Exxon Mobil, Esso's parent company, decided it is no longer financially viable.

It is expected that eight members of staff will lose their jobs, although some are being offered alternative positions at other locations.

A member of staff from the petrol station said: "They are closing us down at the start of February because they say we are no longer financially viable.

"Apparently they need to spend £200,000 to £400,000 on new underground tanks, but they're not going to do it. This is the last thing we need to hear, especially not long before Christmas."

A spokesman for Exxon Mobil said: "Esso continuously monitors and reviews the individual performance and profitability of each of its sites against various economic indicators.

"Unfortunately, when sites are no longer financially viable, such as in the case of the Esso Buckland Mill service station, the regrettable decision is taken to close the site.

"We value our employees and will be seeking to minimise the number of redundancies at the site through redeployment to other Esso sites.

"The expected closure date for this site is February 1, 2011, and no decision has yet been taken as to what the future use will be for the site."

Wendy backing call to change breeding laws

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

THE former presenter of Pet Rescue has agreed to become the patron of a Dover animal rescue centre.

Wendy Turner-Webster, who used to present the Channel 4 show, has arranged to become the figurehead for the Chancepixies animal shelter in West Hougham, on the outskirts of the town.

The animal-loving TV presenter decided to become patron for the charity after visiting the kennels on Thursday, November 18.

Mrs Turner-Webster said: "I'm more than happy to be the patron. It is something that I'm strongly into and support."

During her visit, Mrs Turner-Webster was told about the charity's unique approach to rescue dogs and the re-homing process.

Charity trustee, David Anderson, said: "We are unique because we will take our dogs back if there are any issues."

"We also continue the training we give the dogs once they have been adopted, and they can always come back for more sessions after a few weeks."

Behaviourist Freia Brisley said: "During the first two weeks we give the dogs a medical and some assessments to see what the dog is like and to work out what a suitable home would be."

"We also introduce the training, and this is done on an individual basis but includes basic obedience."

Volunteer Heidi Anderson said: "We tend to

GOOD CAUSE: Former Pet Rescue presenter Wendy Turner-Webster has become the patron of the Chancepixies' animal rescue centre in Dover build up a rapport with the people re-homing the dogs and we have a happy endings page detailing how they've got on."

Mrs Turner-Webster said: "I'd urge anyone looking to get a dog, cat, or any small animal to look at animals in a rescue centre and ones that need a second chance."

"It is really important to have a rescue pet if you can."

The Chancepixies Animal Centre is also collecting signatures for a petition with the aim of changing breeding legislation to help reduce, and ultimately remove, the number of unwanted dogs that either end up in rescue kennels or are put down.

Mrs Anderson said: "There is a massive problem in the UK with animal welfare and uncontrolled breeding."

"In 2009 there were 250,000 registered puppies, but during the same year, 100,000 dogs were taken into rescue centres – although the real figures are likely to be much higher."

"Once stray dogs are taken in by wardens they have seven days to be re-homed before there are three remaining options; to be taken into a new home; to be given to rescue kennels; or to be killed and 50,000 dogs a year are killed in this way."

For details go to the charity's website at www.chancepixies.com or sign the petition at www.thepetitionsite.com/1/control-uk-dog-breeding-now/ lamp technology, with down-angled fittings to prevent light spillage, we have lowered our energy costs, saving 500,000 kWh per year, and reduced the wattage by 40 per cent."

Despite these steps, Mr Mizen believes that there is still more that can be done at the port.

He said: "Dover Harbour Board can do it any time and it just needs the money spent on it."

"Once it has been done, it will soon start paying for itself."

"At the moment, it is a complete waste of money and energy and it has blotted out the stars."

"We should be able to see our environment. For example, you wouldn't be happy if someone built a wall so you couldn't see the countryside or the beach – and we all should be able to see the stars."

Vandals target listed Redoubt

VANDALS have caused hundreds of pounds worth of damage to the Drop Redoubt in the Western Heights.

The Napoleonic fort has suffered two graffiti attacks and several break-in bids in the past month.

The 150-year-old brickwork has been smashed and further damage has been inflicted by people trying to scale the walls.

English Heritage now faces a repair bill for hundred of pounds, while volunteers from the Western Heights Preservation Society (WHPS) need to make the site safe.

The vandalism has threatened to overshadow the most successful year for the WHPS, which is celebrating its tenth anniversary.

'Don't keep unused medicines at home'

WASTED medicine is costing the Eastern and Coastal Kent almost £7 million a year.

The money that is being lost on unused medication could fund more than 1,000 hip replacements, or employ 300 community nurses.

To reduce the amount of waste, NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent is urging patients to have their repeat prescriptions checked regularly with their pharmacist at a medicine use review.

Patients should have a review if they are not taking all of their medicines on their prescription, if they have not had their medicines reviewed within the last year, or if they are confused about what to take and when.

Correctly

Maureen Aruede, a pharmacist at Cairns Pharmacy, in Dover, said: "Medicine use reviews help patients understand what medicines they are taking and why."

"This is helpful, because if a patient knows what benefits they get from each of their medications, they are more likely to keep taking them correctly and, as a result, continue to feel well."

"The pharmacist will also make sure the dose the patient is taking is correct, and that the medicine is still needed."

"If you've been on the same medication for a number of years it's easy to forget why you are taking it."

"Quite often, medicines should only be taken for a short period of time, yet patients continue to request them on their repeat prescriptions long after the medication is no longer needed."

"Medicines have an expiry date."

Stockpile

"If you keep a medicine past this date it will stop working as well as it should, so only order what you need at the time and don't stockpile."

"There is also a risk to children and pets if you store a lot of medicine around your house."

"Make sure you take any medicines you no longer need back to your pharmacy for disposal."

"It is not safe putting these medicines in the normal household rubbish or flushing them down the toilet."

To find your local pharmacist go to www.nhs.uk or call NHS Direct on 0845 46 47.

Porchlight urges end to homeless cycle of misery

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

THE number of homeless people sleeping rough in Dover has hit a record high.

The latest survey by homeless charity Porchlight counted eight people on the port's streets on Thursday, October 21. Dover now has the second highest level of homelessness in the county, with Shepway reporting nine rough sleepers.

Surveys during the previous two years reported just one homeless person in Dover.

Porchlight's tenth annual street count began at 2am and saw 87 volunteers record the number of homeless people as part of a survey that feeds into national statistics.

Part of the reason for the increase may be revised Government guidelines defining a rough sleeper. In previous years, only people lying on the ground could be counted, while the new brief incorporated people sleeping, about to bed down or actually bedded down in the open air, and people in buildings or other places not designed for habitation.

In previous counts, only councils in homeless hotspots would supply data to central government and this method led to just 70 councils offering information.

According to data collated under this system, there were some 440 people sleeping on the streets in England on any given night.

This latest survey required areas where counts did not take place to submit estimates and reveals the total to be nearly three times higher, with a national total of rough sleepers closer to 1,250.

Porchlight's chief executive, Mike Barrett, said: "Recognition that the guidelines were impractical and the figures way off the mark shows positive action by the coalition Government.

"However, now a more accurate picture has been revealed, the 2012 target to end street homelessness in England is looking more than ambitious.

BROKEN SLEEP: New counting methods have shown the true extent of homelessness in Dover and beyond

"Charities have known the true extent of the problem for years and in light of the cuts in the comprehensive spending review we are asking central and local government to prioritise the issue when allocating budgets.

"I would also ask that local authorities work in the spirit that the new procedures are intended and provide accurate figures to enable support services to target areas where help is needed most. If we work together and work hard, we can break the cycle of homelessness and end the plight faced by many people."

Gill Bryant, strategic manager for the charity's rough sleeper service, said: "The ability of the public to give us accurate information about rough sleepers is vital to our work and our ability to get people off the streets and into long-term accommodation.

"I appeal to anyone who sees someone sleeping rough to let us know by calling 0800 567 7699 or completing a form on our website, www.porchlight.org.uk.

"When we know, we can help."

Leg-break driver sought

A SCHOOLBOY suffered a broken leg after being run over by a car in Dover.

The 12-year-old was crossing the road when he was struck by a silver car on Coombe Valley Road, near to the junction with Magdala Road, on October 6, at about 3.45pm. The driver stopped and asked the boy if he needed an ambulance, but when the youngster said no, they drove away.

The boy managed to walk, but had in fact broken his leg. Anyone who saw the incident, or who can identify the silver car, is asked to phone PC Paul Howe on 01622 690690.

A MAN has died after falling through a warehouse roof.

The 61-year-old was reported to have been working on guttering at the building, in Channel View Road, when he fell through the roof and dropped about 20ft. Emergency services were alerted after reports that the man, from Folkestone, had sustained serious injuries. The air ambulance attended, along with paramedics, fire crews and the police.

Chipping away at port sell-off plans

AN OPPONENT of the privatisation of the Port of Dover has been travelling the country collecting signatures against the sell-off.

Dr Dick Rodgers has been to Dover, Barnet, Weybridge, Whitney and his home city of Birmingham, getting people to sign his petition against the privatisation plan.

The former European election candidate for the West Midlands has travelled to the constituencies of Prime Minister David Cameron, transport minister Theresa Villiers and Secretary of State for Transport Philip Hammond – at Whitney, Barnet and Weybridge respectively – over the last few weeks.

Dr Rodgers said: "I've been working on this since I first heard about the idea in January and I even came down to Dover in the snow with a petition.

"There has been a good response and I have managed to get over 5,000 signatures.

"Lots of people think it's a potty thing to do and it could be sold to anyone, including the French or even the Chinese.

"But I see Dover as a really important part of the national infrastructure, especially as an exporting economy.

"Selling off the port will make our exports more expensive."

End of the road for bike that carried our posties

■ BY MARIJKE COX

THE familiar sight of a postie on a bike is to become a thing of the past as radical changes to the way that mail is delivered are introduced.

Postal workers in eastern parts of the county saw their bicycles taken away last week and replaced with vans – or trolleys for places inaccessible by larger vehicles – in a shake-up by Royal Mail.

The service said it was part of a £2 billion modernisation of the national operation, arguing that it would stop workers having to carry heavy loads of letters and parcels.

One east Kent worker, who asked not to be named, questioned why changes needed to be made when the old system worked.

He said: "All bikes are being taken away and we'll be going out in vans in pairs. Bike sheds at the sorting offices are also being taken down."

A spokesman for Royal Mail said it was not a straightforward switch from bikes to vans, and that not all cycles would go.

But he admitted vans would be the most common way for posties to travel, claiming it would be greener. Previously, postmen were replenished with mail throughout their rounds, leading to multiple trips by vans going to and from the sorting office.

PROGRESS: Bicycles will be replaced by vans and trolleys

"We remain committed to becoming a greener organisation, and the improvements we are making will help in our aim of achieving a 34 per cent reduction in carbon emissions by 2015," he said.

"As we deliver fewer letters, but more packets and parcels than we did, the switch to vans and trolleys will enable us to take the weight off backs. We can reduce cycling accidents involving staff and we can eliminate the need to send out older, more polluting vans to replenish postmen and women by sending out all the mail, including parcels and special delivery, in one go."

The Communication Workers' Union, which represents postal workers in the county, welcomed the move.

A spokeswoman said: "We fully support this and the reasons behind it. A lot of people have a rose-tinted view of the postman on his bike, but this is a positive change."

But campaigners from bike group CTC said many postal workers were unhappy about giving up their bikes. Campaign coordinator Debra Rolfe said delivering mail by bike was good for the environment, for the health of postmen and women and for the safety of people using the road.

She said: "To overcome the problem of the increase in the number of parcels being delivered, Royal Mail needs look at using cargo bicycles and tricycles."

"These are already used in the UK by courier companies such as DHL and FedEx and are the norm in other European countries."

"It is also ironic that Royal Mail says it will always consider its environmental impact and wants to develop low-carbon vehicles, when at the same time it is planning to stop using the one of the greenest forms of transport."

Many of the bikes previously used by Royal Mail will be donated to charity.

Runners give a lift to cancer charity

THE New Year's Day Bra Run is entering its eighth year with the aim of raising a record-breaking sum for charity.

The 5km fun run/walk in Deal has so far collected more than £21,000 for Breast Cancer care.

Event organiser Sally Scoggins said: "The run idea came up after a couple of friends of mine asked if Deal Tri could help in raising funds for a breast-cancer care walk they were doing along the Great Wall of China seven years ago."

"It started me thinking about local people getting involved in it with a fun element of decorated bras."

"It has proved popular, and each New Year's Day ladies and men come along to join in the fun."

"We have all age groups: some walk, some run, some push buggies and some bring their dogs, who also don a bra!"

Early entrants receive details of the race plan, but runners can enter on the day.

All the sponsorship money and entrance fees go directly to charity, with volunteers helping to marshal the race.

QUESTION & ANSWER

JO JAMES

Q How long have you had connections with Kent?

A My grandparents lived here, and although I was an Army child and therefore lived in various places, we always maintained contact here. I finally settled in Kent permanently 35 years ago.

Q How did you get involved in the Chamber of Commerce?

A I originally ran a children's nursery but had to take a long break from work for medical reasons. As I recovered, I felt that, although I had young children at home, I needed some part-time work and I answered a small-ad for 12 hours a week of secretarial work. I can do that, I thought. That was in July 1990. The job turned out to be at the then-Ashford Chamber of Commerce, and I have been with the chamber ever since. I suppose you could say that I have just completed 20 years of my sentence!

Q Tell us how the chamber helps business in the county

A We use the strapline 'The Ultimate Business Network' and that is what we try to be. It means we are here to help any business in any capacity that we can. Kent Invicta Chamber of Commerce can advise and support anybody from the initial dream of a business conception through to a successful trading environment and the fulfilment of that dream. For existing companies of all shapes and sizes, we can help monitor, develop and expand their trading operation by cutting costs, increasing productivity and advising on all aspects of business practice. Our members can benefit from our extensive networking opportunities, cost-effective member services of all kinds and frequent workshops and advisory clinics.

Q What challenges face business at the moment?

A The biggest challenge at present has to be the ramifications of the recession and the Government's efforts to mitigate the effects of it. There is no doubt that cutbacks and the restructuring of the infrastructure of business support will have wide-ranging effects on the business environment. The running-down of the regional development agencies and the introduction of local enterprise partnerships is another crucial aspect with uncertain outcomes. It is highly likely that we are entering a period of significant change in the whole gamut of business and commerce, and we really have little idea how it will pan out. That uncertainty is probably what constitutes the biggest challenge. How we respond to it is something we have to learn as it unfolds.

Q Are you optimistic about local enterprise partnerships?

A Cautiously optimistic – I believe that any change always presents opportunities. If change can present opportunities, then I feel that the Kent, Greater Essex and East Sussex LEP should be in a position to maximise those opportunities. Provided that the LEPs operate as conceived, with a major element of input from business, then I believe that we can look forward to a positive future.

Q Is there too much red tape for start-up businesses?

A I could devote a whole page to the subject of business red tape, and not just where start-ups are concerned. There are far too many impediments to business growth and development, and frankly it would be tedious to try to list them all. This is where I have great hopes that a business-led LEP will be able to help.

Q What is the chamber's attitude towards the EU?

A One of the many effects of the changing economy might well be a downturn in domestic demand, and the EU represents a whole new market available to local business, which has, frankly, thus far been slow to exploit that potential. Perhaps we have been concentrating too much on the market on our doorstep. A strong EU represents a strong market opportunity and we should all work towards it.

Homes cash bonus lifeline for councils

EMPTY properties could become a lifeline for cash-strapped councils after Whitehall announced plans to include them in the money-for-new-houses scheme.

Under proposals published for consultation, town halls could see a massive cash bonus whereby the Government would match the additional council tax raised by every new property for the next six years.

It would also top up council funding with £350 per home during that time.

If the plans go ahead, the New Homes Bonus, originally intended for new houses, would include refurbished older properties made available for accommodation.

On the five-year anniversary of Kent's No Use Empty project, David Ireland, chief executive of the Empty Homes Agency, welcomed the move and said it was illogical not to include long-term empty properties in the bonus scheme.

Aspiration

"It makes sense. There are aspirations for thousands more houses and it should be that empty properties count," he said.

The No Use Empty project, set up in 2005 by Kent County Council and now run by Kent's 12 district and borough authorities, smashed its targets with one in six properties being salvaged. Since it was launched, 1,266 empty buildings have been turned into homes.

Across Kent, there are 9,000 empty properties. No Use Empty invites owners to get help and advice as well as providing a loan to help finance refurbishments and make properties habitable again.

To be eligible, properties must be either sold or rented after completion and the loans repaid in full, when the money is then recycled for another project.

Face it, you don't need so many online friends

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

FACEBOOK fanatics risk being dragged into criminal investigations if they add too many unknown people as friends.

Many users compete to build up as many online acquaintances as they can on the social-networking website, even if they have never met the people they are adding.

But this, says 22-year-old University of Kent student Zack Whittaker, increases the chances of them being associated with terrorists or gang members and opens them up to intelligence gathering.

Mr Whittaker writes for the hugely popular ZDNet technology website but says despite his blogs winning him an army of admirers in the United States, he still only has about 200 Facebook friends.

"The more friends you have on Facebook, the more likely it is that you're adding people you don't really know," he said. "The chances are then higher that some of these people will be involved in activity that's not lawful."

"I'm careful not to expose my personal life too much due to the number of readers I have in the States, but because I know every single one of my Facebook friends I can vouch for every single of them. The same can't be said for people who have 1,500 or more."

Mr Whittaker, who has Tourette's syndrome and admits to involuntarily shouting "Bomb!" when travelling by train, is studying for a degree in criminology and social policy.

He is one of the supporters of National Unfriend Day, which was launched by American talk-show host Jimmy Kimmel and held on Wednesday last week.

"Government agencies like the FBI are not necessarily interested in the conversations people have on Facebook, but more the contacts people make," said Mr Whittaker.

"If somebody has 1,500 friends and two of them are very nasty characters, they could find themselves dragged into something sinister which they actually know nothing about."

Your Christmas guide to Sandwich

COME & ENJOY A FESTIVE NIGHT OF FUN IN MEDIEVAL SANDWICH TOWN.

The New Sandwich Christmas Carnival takes place on Friday 26th November, when a glorious procession leaves the Guildhall at 6.30 pm, returning to the Guildhall for the New LED Christmas Lights to be switched on. The pedestrian procession will make its way around the town lit entirely by handheld lanterns and torches finishing with the grand lights switch on by County Councillor Leyland Ridings and assisted by DJ Johnny Lewis.

At the Guildhall there will be stalls selling all sorts of food and drink. There will be street entertainers with fun things for both adults and children to enjoy, a superb hog roast, and many other traditional stalls awaiting your custom. It will be great fun eating roast pork, sipping mulled wine whilst listening to traditional carols. There will be a selection of musical bands which will add traditional Christmas sights and sounds after dark!

The key factor this year will be the replacement of the towns old festoon lighting with entirely new energy saving LED lighting. With no vehicles and only handheld LED torches the whole event will have little if any Carbon footprint. It will be the 'Greenest' Christmas Carnival and Lights event in Kent if not the whole of England come along and join us to celebrate the start of the festive season in this magical medieval town.

BREAK TIME

Maritime Festival floats pupils' boat

THE Kent Maritime Festival attracted thousands of school pupils from across the country to Dover.

The event was held at cruise terminal 2 on Thursday, October 14, and sponsored by the newly-merged South and West Kent colleges.

Principal Bill Fearon said the town was central to the future of the college.

He said: "I can't think of a better place than Dover to meet the needs of employers in the maritime industry."

"We want a national reputation for our college in Dover for training for this sector."

"People in the town will notice a new emphasis on maritime skills at the college from next September, and we offer short courses to local employers now."

The Kent Maritime Festival sets out stalls where teenagers can be inspired to consider the marine or maritime sectors for their future careers.

More than 75 interactive stands were at the show, ranging from marine engineering to extreme water-sports, as well as specialist subjects such as logistics and navigation.

The show was organised by the Education Business Partnership Kent, which works to bring together schools and employers, and the day provided youngsters with the opportunity to work with marine employers and take part in hands-on activities.

Other occupations on offer included engineering, hospitality, health and beauty, travel and tourism, science, performing arts, geography, business and construction, as well as careers in the Merchant Navy.

QUESTION TIME: Students from local schools attend a chamber debate during a week of activities organised by Dover District Council to show them how the authority operates

Pupils exercise democratic right to quiz council chiefs

■ BY MATHEW BEECH

THE politicians and councillors of the future got a chance to witness democracy in action during a week of activities.

Dover District Council invited students to a day of events last month.

The DDC democratic-support team organised the activities for Friday, October 22, and they included a council chamber debate, where the students were able to quiz Kent County Council and DDC officers on particular themes.

These included things to do and places to go, youth services, young people staying safe and litter and recycling.

There was also a fun speed-dating-style exercise which saw some of the pupils ask councillors questions before rating the answers.

Students also heard from Sue Chandler, DDC cabinet member for community, housing and youth, after watching a DVD about homeless teenagers.

Realities

The DVD has been made by students from St Edmund's School and is designed to bring home to young people some of the realities of living on the street.

Students attended from Astor College For The Arts, Castle Community College, Dover Grammar School for Girls, Sandwich Technology School and St Edmund's Catholic School.

The event was designed to help students gain an understanding of the roles of Dover district and Kent county councils as well as learn how democracy works at a local level.

Cllr Chandler said: "The day was a great success and we were delighted to support Local Democracy Week for the 10th consecutive year."

"We all had a lot of fun with the political speed-dating exercise and, as usual, the councillors learned a lot from our young people, and hopefully it helped the youngsters to understand more of what councillors do."

"We were also very pleased to show the DVD, produced as part of our youth homelessness strategy, and to talk about some of the work we are doing to help young homeless people."

developing confidence and individual talents

Frustrated to know that your child could succeed but is making slow progress?

Is it because of going unnoticed in a large school or a large class size?

Is your child lacking the confidence to flourish?

At Dover College, we are as keen as any other school to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, our recent inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. By offering boys and girls timely affirmation and appropriate challenges in a caring environment, many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly, themselves with their achievements.

Author backs sacked drugs adviser

■ BY MARIJKE COX

THE author of a new book on drugs has backed a controversial study led by sacked Government adviser David Nutt that claimed alcohol was more harmful than heroin.

Alex Stevens, professor in criminal justice at the University of Kent, said people needed to be told the truth about the dangers of alcohol and praised Professor Nutt for addressing the issue. He also said evidence suggested that little harm would come from decriminalising personal possession of drugs.

The criminologist attended the Independent Scientific Committee summit on Monday last week with Prof Nutt – who was sacked last year for saying ecstasy was less harmful than other drugs – and other academics to discuss new findings that exposed alcohol as the most harmful drug overall in relation to damage to users and the wider society.

Professor Stevens said: "While we are not condoning drug-use, the implications of alcohol need to be addressed. More people die from alcohol than heroin. Liver disease will be the leading cause of death in 10 years' time. Then there is the violence caused by alcohol and the money spent on clearing that up."

The findings of Prof Nutt's study are expected to revive debates over classification of drugs, a subject at the heart of Prof Stevens's new book, Drugs, Crime And Public Health, which challenges drugs policy.

It reveals how criminalisation of drug-users had not reduced drug-related harm, and punishment, such as prison, had failed to cut illicit use of drugs.

Prof Stevens said the UK needed to be bolder in taking steps towards more effective, evidence-based policies to increase freedom and reduce drug-taking.

"The thrust of my argument is that decriminalisation should be considered," he said. "When cannabis was moved from Class B to C, with reduced punishment, its use continued to fall."

"The idea that decriminalisation increases drug problems is not accurate. If people are going to take drugs, they don't think about what class it is."

Prof Stevens said decriminalising cannabis would take money out of the hands of crooks.

"If it was available through licensed, regulated premises, like in The Netherlands and Portugal, weaker and less dangerous cannabis would be sold and gangsters would not make as much money," he said.

Asked whether hard drugs such as crack cocaine and heroin could be decriminalised, Prof Stevens said there needed to be evaluated steps taken to see how it would work, including the possibility of prescription control for addicts.

"The evidence suggests little harm would come from decriminalising personal possession," he said.

His book also focuses on the need for better social and welfare support after findings showed the poor suffered most from drug-related harm, such as arrest, imprisonment, illness and death, despite drugs being more common in richer circles.

"There are more drugs in richer areas, but poor people are most affected," he said. "They are more likely to get arrested. This is because in deprived areas there is more crime and policing."

Prof Stevens said: "Rich people are also less likely to become dependent on drugs. They don't do it for a long time. They have other things to do in their lives and have more support."

His book also reveals increased criminalisation does not reduce drug use, with Portugal and The Netherlands, two countries with liberal drug policies, having lower rates than the UK.

UNBEATABLE SAIL

Cross-Channel ferry firm P&O Ferries has picked up two national travel awards. The company took the honours for best cross-Channel ferry operator and for best ferry operator (other routes), for the Hull to Rotterdam and Zeebrugge service.

Votes were cast by more than 220,000 members of the public and travel professionals. The ceremony was held at Battersea Evolution in Battersea Park, London, earlier this month.

Passenger-services director Simon Johnson, pictured above at the awards ceremony after collecting the ferry-operator-of-the-year trophy, said: "This is a great achievement and means even more because we know we won as a direct result of what our customers think of us. I must also say 'Well done' to all our staff who work so hard to keep us out in front."

YOUR LETTERS

Christmas is again on us far too early

I was stunned while walking past a church in Folkestone last week

Christmas lights had to be put up earlier

I read the Hythe reader's comments about Christmas lights being up "but not lit in the early days of October in Folkestone" (Letters, November 10) and would just like to make the following observation:

1. There are few companies capable of carrying out the works required for installing Christmas lights. We have to work with their busy schedule around the country at this time of year.
2. New rules and regulations are very stringent. In order to have the new lighting scheme installed and ready for the switch-on at the end of November, the company we used had to start in October – it took three weeks (mainly in the evenings) just to safely install the new catenary wiring and place the new lights in 18 trees. All these lights will be up permanently and used on other occasions as required.
3. The company has other towns to deal with, so we were fortunate in having the bulk of our work done before the end of October. The remainder of the Christmas lights in the precinct were due to be installed after Remembrance Sunday, which is when we prefer to have them up, but we have to go along with what our contractor can cope with.

I have some sympathy with the reader's comments about Christmas coming earlier and earlier, but if our lights were not ready to be switched on by the start of the festive season in December, there would no doubt be other complaints.

John D Barber
Folkestone town-centre manager

Payment gave lift to new world disorder

The news that the British government is to pay millions of pounds to 16 individuals, including Binyam Mohamed, who was swanning around Pakistan and Afghanistan for some reason best known to himself, must fill decent people in England with dismay.

All this falls on the cash-rich, morally-poor ex-Prime Minister Tony Blair and the long-forgotten George W Bush causing new world disorder.

This was a sad day for democracy and a good day for our enemies.

Alan Ewins

Ian MacMillan asks why the country should get excited about the royal engagement

I REMEMBER where I was when Princess Diana – the Princess of Hearts, as Tony Blair called her – died.

I was in bed and had put the radio on when the news broke. I thought 'How sad' and looked forward to a normal day.

Alas, many youngsters die every day and it's all very regrettable, as is being a passenger in a car and not putting on a seatbelt.

Like Diana, I was a single parent when she died and had children of my own, aged four, nine and 10. But I was a working parent and had neither the time nor the money for the promiscuous lifestyle Diana enjoyed.

I was taken aback by the reaction to her death and, when one is evidently in a small minority, it's necessary to think very carefully and try to believe that the majority are right and it is you who are deeply flawed for, in this case, finding the death of Diana no more regrettable than, for instance, the death of a saint of a girl that I knew who died in the same year.

She had cystic fibrosis but, in spite of the knowledge of her likely early death, she was always cheerful and kind and consequently made me ashamed of my own petty worries.

There were few flowers for her when she died – only noticed and mourned by her nearest and dearest.

No special song by Elton John and no minute's silence. So I never understood the reaction to Diana's death.

A kind of floral fascism was at work after her death in a country patrolled by the grief police, and all of it was incomprehensible to me.

A bit like the story of The Emperor's New Clothes, I thought, me being one of the few to say he was naked.

And it's begun again. I'm completely indifferent regarding a couple of toffs getting engaged.

OK, one of them may be a future king, but the monarchy is an anachronistic, parasitic institution belonging to the 15th century and, if one believes in a classless society, has no place in 21st-century Britain.

We don't have hereditary doctors, hereditary politicians or hereditary airline pilots without any reference to their ability to do their jobs, but an exception is made for the scions of one particular family.

If one thinks that this country ought to be a meritocracy, why bother to abolish the hereditary peers in the House of Lords?

The monarchy is the basis of our class system – why tinker about at the edges rather than chop off the head?

In the meantime, spare a thought for republicans such as me who will have to endure months and months of mindless, hysterical nonsense.

Yes, I'm in a minority. Tell me why I am wrong. I probably won't understand, but I promise to listen and try.

Council merger does not go far enough

The decision by Shepway and Dover district councils to merge their services is to be welcomed, especially at a time of severe cutbacks in local-authority budgets.

Mere merger of services, though, does not go far enough. Shepway and Dover councils should be merged in their entirety into one unitary authority with the number of councillors cut by at least half, if not more.

At the same time wasteful town councils across the districts should be abolished, along with their mayoral chains and turgid political newsheets.

A new Channel authority would not only serve the people of Shepway and Dover better but would be a powerful counterweight to the ever-more powerful county council that can grab land at Sellindge for its lorry park one minute and in the next cause chaos at the Port of Dover with Operation Stack and its inability to grit our roads in winter.

A new unitary authority would also be a golden opportunity to clear out the deadwood among the present councillors on Shepway and Dover councils.

No longer would the councils be a sinecure for timeservers and party followers – rather, elected members would need to prove their worth if we had fewer councillors.

People's faith in democracy might also be restored across the area if a new unitary authority resulted in the people of Lydd being given the opportunity at a by-election to replace their dear departed councillor within weeks, not some time in the distant future judged less embarrassing to the Tory party losing the seat.

The Coalition Government has proclaimed time and again its commitment to cutting waste and bureaucracy.

Cutting the number of councillors and councils by half along the Channel coast would certainly be nailing its flag to the mast in the Cinque Ports.

Explain the reason for museum fence

If Mike Eddy (last week's letters) one of his fellow trustees of Deal Maritime And Local History Museum could explain how the actions they have taken achieve

Fence the best way to protect museum

Peter Jull (last week's letters) asks the trustees of the Deal Maritime And Local History Museum to explain the reasons the museum was obliged to put a fence around its property.

He then answers his own questions. It was put up for the safety and security of the museum's collections and of its visitors.

Unfortunately, Mr Jull seems unable to accept that the museum's visitors and its collections should be as safe and secure as possible.

He seems unable to understand that, if the low safety barrier, put up after the museum charity ended the neighbour's tenancy, was constantly being moved around the museum's yard, then there was a clear risk to visitors and to the museum and the neighbour through accident claims.

He seems equally unable to understand that, when the neighbours moved the artefacts in the museum yard or taped messages to them, they were damaging the collections.

He also asks if we had ever asked the neighbour whether she "felt inconvenienced" by visitors to the museum being "near" the windows of her lean-to kitchen outhouse.

There was no need to ask. She has made her opinions crystal-clear for some time.

Mike Eddy, deputy chairman

Lord Young saga was pointer to Tory truth

Lord Young had to go.

It's not so much that he was insensitive in claiming that we "have never had it so good". A former minister in the Thatcher government is unlikely to be worried about being insensitive.

No, the real problem was that he was an adviser on enterprise to David Cameron and even Mr Cameron was obliged to describe his thinking as "inaccurate".

And Mr Cameron was obliged to dismiss Lord Young's opinion as "inaccurate" because, if he hadn't done so, then the whole reason for the Coalition Government's slash-and-burn approach to the public services would have been destroyed.

The excuse for the savagery of the Coalition's cuts is that they are necessary because we are in a recession and we need to control spending.

But if Mr Cameron's 'enterprise Tsar' reckons that it's only a "so-called recession", then the savage cuts are unnecessary. The truth is revealed.

The level and intensity of the cuts are the product of Conservative and LibDem dogma rather than economic forethought.

And, of course, Mr Cameron's judgement in appointing him in the first place is shown, again, to be at fault.

Time to take action to save our forests

Kent Green Party is concerned that British forests may be sold off by the Government.

Our main objection to selling off forests is that this is likely to lead to further habitat fragmentation, ie species get trapped in smaller and smaller islands of vegetation. This inevitably leads to their extinction in the smaller fragments.

Kent Green Party has already resisted attempts to remove a quarter of Lyminge Forest for a holiday village.

We fear selling off forests will lead to development proposals for leisure and housing.

Kent has a substantial area of woodland in the Green Belt near London.

It has about 45,217 hectares of broadleaved, mixed and yew woodland and a further 3,813 hectares of coniferous forest.

We note that the Government has rushed to calm down opposition to the sell-off by offering consultation.

However, we also note that the Government seems intent on selling off nature reserves and that 25 conservation organisations have condemned this policy.

There are even suggestions that the Government is trying to 'dump' nature reserves on these groups without funding.

Kent Green Party believes that protecting and improving forests will need the support of the Government.

We call on everyone who values their local environment to write to their MPs condemning these policies.

CLEANING UP: Kingsgate Bay met the standard

Coast is clear for another accolade

THOSE looking forward to enjoying a dip in the sea next summer can do so with ease after every beach in Kent was awarded top-quality status for its clean water.

Findings released by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) and the Environment Agency showed that the county's 28 bathing spots met the highest European standards for water quality.

It comes just weeks after Kent's coastline was named as a top world destination by travel guide Frommer's.

Tourism bodies are trumpeting both accolades and believe they will bring even more people to the coastal towns.

Chris Kirkham, manager of tourism board Discover Folkestone, Hythe and Romney Marsh, said: "There is a lot of positive news being generated by the Kent coast."

"We have had more people deciding to holiday in the UK over the last three or four years and I don't think that's likely to change."

Areas such as Thanet, which has a number of celebrated bays highlighted by Blue Flag status, already attracts thousands of tourists each year to its sandy beaches.

Kate's Kent past reveals her own royal heritage

■ BY CHRIS MURPHY

KATE Middleton is the first commoner to marry into the Royal Family in 350 years, but her Kent past is nothing to be ashamed of.

The bride-to-be breaks the three-and-a-half-century record set when Anne Hyde wed the Duke of York, who was later crowned James II, in 1660.

But it has now emerged that the 28-year-old, full name Catherine Elizabeth Middleton, has plenty of ancestral connections with the county.

Researchers William Addams Reitwiesner and Michael J Wood have compiled her family tree and revealed Kate's Kent heritage.

Her great-great-grandfather was Frederick John Glassborow, who was born in Nelson Terrace, Haggerstone, Middlesex, on February 22, 1859.

In 1881 he was a commercial clerk, rising to become a shipping manager in 1920. He died at Homeleigh, Lismore Road, Beltinge, Kent, on December 21, 1932.

A great-great-great-grandfather was building labourer and brickmaker John Goldsmith, who was born in Maidstone in 1827. He died from internal strangulation, a bowel condition, in Islington in June, 1888.

Kate had a great-great-great-great-grandfather, again called John Goldsmith, who was born in Kent in 1783.

He was a carpenter and died around 1851. He was married to Rebecca, who was born in Maidstone in 1796 and died from bronchitis at Church Street, Tovil, on December 29, 1869.

Under a section labelled 'plausible continuation of the ancestry of Kate Middleton' by the researchers, she has under 14 'greats' some noble blood in the guise of Thomas Boleyn, 1st Earl of Wiltshire, who was born in 1477 at Hever, Kent, and died at Hever Castle, on March 12, 1538 or 1539.

The father of Anne Boleyn, the second wife of Henry VIII, was an English diplomat and politician whose grandfather Geoffrey Boleyn, a wealthy mercer, had purchased the Kent manor home. Boleyn was the maternal grandfather of Queen Elizabeth I.

CLOSE: Kate and William are 12th cousins, once removed

Hever historian Anna Spender said: "Thomas Boleyn is Kate's 14th-generation great-grandparent. He had three children with his wife, Elizabeth Howard: Mary, who was mistress of Henry VIII; Anne, second wife of Henry VIII and mother of Queen Elizabeth I; and George. The children spent their childhood at Hever Castle."

"Prince William and Kate Middleton are distantly related, 12th cousins once removed, and are descended from the Boleyn family, who owned Hever Castle in Kent between 1462 and 1538."

"Thomas Boleyn is Prince William and Kate's 14th-generation grandfather. They are descended from Mary Boleyn's side of the family."

£1.6 million repairs contract is agreed

A MILLION-POUND council-housing contract has been awarded to facilities-services provider Morrison.

The £1.6 million-per-year deal will see the contractor take on responsibility for providing a range of repairs and maintenance services to Dover District Council's 4,600 homes.

The partnership, which commences next month, will also see Morrison provide day-to-day responsive repairs, out-of-hours repairs and void-maintenance repairs.

Guy Wakeley, Morrison chief executive, said: "We are extremely pleased to have been awarded this new contract with Dover District Council and look forward to providing a first-class repairs service."

Just one number to get the police

KENT Police have entered the final phase of introducing a single non-emergency number.

The year-long project aims to make it easier for members of the public to get in touch with the local police force.

Callers to police stations were being redirected to the new number, but from Monday, November 8, people have had to dial 01622 690690 directly.

Kent Police Assistant Chief Constable Andy Adams said: "This single number should make contacting the police in a non-emergency situation much more straightforward for people."

The neighbourhood policing team contact numbers will not change. For details, visit www.kent.police.uk.

Conkers prove a smash for Gurkha youngsters

■ BY NICK AMES

GURKHA children at a primary school have been getting into the swing of a traditional children's autumn pastime – conkers.

Pupils at St Mary's primary school in Ashford have taken up the age-old game, which has been threatened in recent years by health-and-safety legislation in some schools.

The St Mary's youngsters have even set up competitions and formed their own club – with the Nepalese children among the most enthusiastic players.

The game is played by two players, each with a conker threaded on to a piece of string – they take turns striking each other's horse chestnut until one breaks.

The game was reintroduced to the school after a member of staff enquired whether teachers and pupils had any interest in it.

Some public perception is that it has been banned under health-and-safety legislation, although this is not the case.

So when teachers started to explain the game and produced the raw materials, interest soared among pupils.

Head-teacher Sue Parkin said: "In the weeks leading up to half-term, the games were in full swing as there were horse chestnuts all around to be picked up.

PRESENT ARMS: Gurkha pupils ready with their conkers

"We have no problem with the children playing conkers at all, unless they start to hit each other with them.

"We have quite a number of pupils from a Nepalese background who come from the families of Gurkha soldiers.

"Of course they had never seen the game of conkers before, so they became fascinated and very enthusiastic players."

Members of staff supervise the games and attach the horse chestnuts to the string.

The first recorded game of conkers was on the Isle of Wight in the mid-19th century and it spread in popularity across the British Isles. It reached Ireland but not mainland Europe.

In 1965, the World Conker Championships were set up in Ashton, Northamptonshire, and still take place on the second Sunday of October every year.

In 2004, an audience of 5,000 turned up to watch more than 500 competitors from all over the world.

The first time that a non-British contestant won the Men's World Conker Championship was in 1976, when the Mexican Jorge Ramirez Carrillo took the place of a contestant who was unable to get to Ashton on time – and defeated the 1975 champion.

The men's champion has been British in every other year except 1998, when German Helmut Kern won.

In 2000, a survey of British schools showed that many were not allowing children to play the game because of worries about splinters or concerns over pupils with nut allergies.

And in 2004, a school in Carlisle bought six pairs of goggles for pupils to wear while playing the game.

The TV programme Top Gear later staged a game of giant conkers using caravans suspended from cranes.

After putting on safety goggles, presenter James May said: "I now feel perfectly happy about being hit in the face by a caravan."

Panto season? It's right behind you!

We check out the region's top family pantomimes this festive season

PANTOMIME

Various dates and venues

PANTOMIME season is almost upon us. That's right, it's once again time for dames to don their tights and TV stars to ham it up as only they can, as the region's productions are set to spring into life.

Many rehearsals are already under way, so don't be surprised if you bump into a soap star in your local supermarket.

There are several pantos set to delight families in the East Kent area, as the Christmas and new year tradition continues.

For many theatres it's a time for them to raise their profile in the community and make some money with the flagships shows.

So it's time to decide which one you want to go to and book your seats.

In Margate, the Winter Gardens is the venue to see Cinderella, a pantomime classic.

Kate Anthony, who was Aunty Pam in Coronation Street, heads the cast as Baroness Hardup.

The show runs from December 19 to 30, with seats at £14 (concessions £12).

There will also be a special schools' performance on December 16.

It's great value entertainment for all the family this Christmas and there will be two performances every day at 2.30pm and 7pm.

The region's most high-profile panto is at the Marlowe Theatre Arena, Canterbury.

Robin Hood stars John Thomson from TV's The Fast Show as the wicked Sherriff of Nottingham, CBeebie's Sid Sloane as Robin and local funnyman Dave Lee.

Robin's love interest is the fragrant Maid Marion, played by newcomer Katie Birtill.

The show takes place in the Marlowe Theatre Arena tent and runs from December 4 to January 16.

Ticket prices vary, but range from £10 to £24.50.

To book, or find out more, visit www.marlowetheatre.org or call 01227 7877787.

In Folkestone, the story of Aladdin will be brought to life at the Leas Cliff Hall.

With all the ingredients that panto audiences have come to expect – big song and dance numbers, lavish scenes and lots of audience participation – Aladdin is guaranteed to keep big kids as well as little ones entertained.

Aladdin runs from December 23 to January 3. Tickets are priced at £16.25 and are available from www.leascliffhall.org.uk or by calling 0844 847 1776.

Back in Margate, the town's Operatic Society promises a "distinctive version" of Sleeping Beauty.

The show features Neil Paterson as the Prince Phillip and Georgia Rowland-Elliott as

PANTO STARS: Kate Anthony (top) stars as Baroness Hardup in Cinderella, while Margate Operatic Society take to the Winter Gardens stage in Sleeping Beauty the Sleeping Beauty.

Lavish sets and spectacular costumes and a plot full of twists and turns is promised.

It also takes place at the Margate Winter Gardens, from December 1 to December 5.

Tickets are £9 and available by calling 01843 296111 or 01843 297780 or on the website at www.margatewintergardens.co.uk.

Full information is available at www.margateoperaticsociety.com.

Further west, at Sittingbourne Community College on December 2 and 3, you can be swept away on a magical carpet into the wonderful world of Aladdin, as students perform the colourful tale.

The Sittingbourne Community College's annual Whole School Show promises to be a spectacular event this year with over 100 cast and crew members, featuring all the Aladdin characters we know and love.

APPOINTMENT WITH DEATH

Thursday, November 25, Friday, November 26, Roundhouse Theatre, Dover

THE Dover Youth Theatre holds this production of the Christie classic, brought to you by its talented senior students.

Following the success of their versions of The Women and Our Town, this takes place in the Dover Discovery Centre part of the theatre.

It's 1945 and Jerusalem's King Solomon Hotel has seen many strange travellers in its time, but none so strange as those who are now visiting.

Besides the formidable Lady Westholme and her timid companion Miss Pryce, there is bluff Alderman Higgs, English doctor

Sarah King and French colleague Dr Gerard.

The focal point of the party is Mrs Boynton, an elderly American invalid, and her stepchildren.

To the casual onlooker they are models of devotion, but the reality is very different and one of them has an appointment with death, a mystery for TransJordanian policeman Colonel Carberry to solve.

Tickets are £8 or £5 concessions. Call the box office on 01304 202544 or visit www.doveryouththeatre.co.uk for more information.

QUEX

Sunday, November 28, Powell Cotton Museum, Birchington

THE museum's doors are being opened to welcome you to Quexmas.

This 50-stall Christmas Craft Fair promises to solve all your present-buying problems and will have a huge range of gifts for all the family.

It takes place from 11am to 5pm and admission is free.

As well as having stalls selling handmade crafts, including jewellery, books, bags, hampers, soaps, toys and seasonal food items, there will also be activities for children.

These include a Santa's Grotto, card-making, lino printing and a secret wrapping room, so there will be lots to keep the little ones occupied.

You'll be able to appreciate the grand Quex House dining room, which will be decorated for a traditional Christmas, take a horse and carriage ride round the grounds and listen to Birchington School Choir and the Quexmas Singers perform seasonal favourites.

You can also enjoy tea, coffee or mulled wine in the Friends of the Museum coffee shop.

For more information, call 01843 842168 or email enquiries@quexmuseum.org.

COLDPLACE

Friday, December 3, East Quay, Whitstable

TOP Coldplay tribute band Coldplace have just ended a European tour and the next stop is Whitstable.

Formed in 2003, the band have a real likeness with their chart-topping heroes, especially in frontman Shane Crofts as Chris Martin.

Now one of the biggest bands in the world, Coldplay have sunk into the national consciousness, and many believe Coldplace to be their closest tribute.

The show on the East Quay will be their last before they head to Russia to play in front of 20,000 people in the Moscow Arena.

Their aim, as a stunningly accurate tribute, is to capture the feeling of a live Coldplay performance – the music, visuals, energy and atmosphere.

Having played almost 300 gigs across the length and breadth of the UK, Coldplace have also played in countries such as Malta, The Dominican Republic, The Netherlands and Ireland, been featured in The Sun and been reviewed on Sky and the BBC.

Tickets are £10 in advance from www.wegotickets.com or from local retailers.

Visit www.whitlive.co.uk for full details.

THE BEES

Thursday, November 25, The Farmhouse, Canterbury

BUZZ along to see top indie band The Bees in Canterbury, when the former Mercury Music Prize nominees visit the city.

On tour to promote their new album, Every Step's A Yes, released in October, they play an intimate show at The Farmhouse venue in Dover Street.

They are due to play a string of dates supporting Paul Weller in the next two months, so the chance to see them up close and personal should not be missed.

Their new single Winter Rose is released on December 20 on the Fiction label.

The band members are no strangers to the area, having co-headlined the Lounge on the Farm festival at Merton Farm, Canterbury, in 2007.

The Isle of White band are known for their brand of country-infused rock, with added elements of reggae, Americana and their trademark strong harmonies.

A show not to miss as they return to play to an appreciative audience.

Tickets to the show are £12.50 and available from www.thefarmhousecanterbury.co.uk.

Over-18s only.

FELIX DEXTER

Saturday, December 11, Quarterhouse, Folkestone

FRESH from critical acclaim for his characters and performance on BBC2's Bellamy's People, former Time Out Comedian of the Year winner, Felix Dexter comes to east Kent as part of a 40-date UK tour.

The comedian's new stand-up show, Multiple Personalities in Order, was first performed at this year's Edinburgh Festival, where it received great reviews.

Felix has performed in a maximum security prison, been threatened with violence for lacking religious conviction and been offered free sexual favours in the street.

These stories and more are full of contradictions, which provide a backdrop for his characters and this year's show.

Felix, an actor and writer, played three of the main characters in Bellamy's People, which starred Paul Whitehouse, Simon Day and Charlie Higson of The Fast Show.

There was Early D, the self-styled Lion of Harlesden, Aubrey Dubuissin, the public school architect and Julius Olufemwe, hotel management student and admirer of all things English.

All three characters now appear live as part of Multiple Personalities in Order.

For tickets (£15 adults, £13 concessions) call 01303 85850 or visit www.quarterhouse.co.uk.

Beginning of the end is bleak and two-dimensional for wizard Harry

■ BY DAMON SMITH

AND so it begins – the final chapter of JK Rowling's best-selling fantasy saga, which holds the honour of the highest-grossing film franchise of all time.

Cleaved in two for creative and commercial reasons, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows follows the shocking events of Harry Potter And The Half-Blood Prince, with Harry (Daniel Radcliffe), Ron (Rupert Grint) and Hermione (Emma Watson) facing the renewed threat from Voldemort (Ralph Fiennes) and the Death Eaters.

David Yates, who directed the sixth film, strikes an even darker, gloomier tone for his imagining of the seventh book, leavened with occasional flashes of humour such as when Mad-Eye Moody (Brendan Gleeson) warns his fellow wizards that the magical Polyjuice Potion tastes like something unsavoury a goblin might produce.

Screenwriter Steve Kloves remains faithful to Rowling's hefty tome, but is allowed brief moments of artistic licence.

We see Harry and Hermione tenderly dancing together, and Voldemort preys upon Ron's insecurities and jealousy by taunting him with a vision of a naked Harry and Hermione locked in a steamy embrace, their blushes spared by swirling tendrils of smoke.

The third film is certificate 12A for a reason.

Even more startling is a stylish animated sequence, that recounts The Tale Of The Three Brothers from Hermione's copy of The Tales Of Beedle The Bard, which explains the meaning of the Deathly Hallows.

The nefarious Lord Voldemort and his followers, including Bellatrix Lestrange (Helena Bonham Carter) and Lucius Malfoy (Jason Isaacs), continue to grow in power, threatening everything that Dumbledore (Michael Gambon) and his followers hold dear.

With Hogwarts in disarray, Harry, Ron and Hermione embark on a perilous quest to find

HALF A STORY: Grief and sexual tension are among the themes for Harry, Hermione and their friends in the first instalment of Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows the mysterious Horcruxes and stop the forces of darkness taking over the wizarding world.

Originally intended for release in 3D, Harry Potter And The Deathly Hallows: Part 1 will only screen in traditional 2D, after the technical wizards at Warner Bros were unable to convert this first instalment to the eye-popping format in time for the worldwide release.

In some ways, it's a blessing, because the film's running time of 146 minutes would mean eye strain for younger audiences.

That said, Part 2 will definitely screen in 3D, ensuring Harry, Ron and Hermione conclude their epic quest with a bang.

Several sequences in David Yates's film have clearly been designed with the format in mind, such as when Voldemort's snake Nagini springs at the camera, fangs bared.

Radcliffe's limited acting range draws unwelcome attention and he is unable to convey the grief of his teenage hero.

Meanwhile, Watson blossoms, capturing the heartbreak of a Mudblood who may lose everything, and Grint provides comic relief as well as mild sexual tension as Ron wrestles with his feelings for Hermione.

Fiennes glowers behind his flawless make-up and Yates seamlessly melds visual effects and live action, not least with the re-introduction of Dobby (voiced by Toby Jones).

Part 1 concludes with good and evil evenly balanced, both sides having suffered losses in pursuit of ultimate victory.

The release of Part 2 on July 15, 2011, seems an agonisingly long way off.

ANIMAL MAGIC: Autumnwatch presenters Chris Packham and Kate Humble

YOUR TV REVIEW AUTUMNWATCH: BBC2, 8.30pm, Thursday

■ BY ED HILL

AUTUMNWATCH comes to an end next week and I for one am not disappointed.

The programme has had a bit of a makeover in the last few outings since that stalwart of natural history programmes, Bill Oddie, decided to leave. He has been replaced by the less grumpy Chris Packham who now sits next to Kate Humble.

It has to be said the sexual chemistry between the two is less disturbing than it was between Mr Oddie and Kate. He was old enough to be her father and I could have done without the stream of innuendo that was inevitable when watching animals do the fundamentals of life.

The programme tries in as many ways as possible to get the public involved. Send us your pictures, emails, join in with our online quiz and press the red button to see more footage of stags rutting, badgers grooming and birds bonking. This is an increasing tendency in TV these days. The cheapest way to make television is to get your viewers to send in the content.

This is just one of my problems with the programme and its sister Springwatch. When it first started in 2005 it was a good idea. The live element of watching the animals was something new and it did put a focus on British wildlife which is often neglected for the flashier critters of the African savannah or Amazonian rainforest.

But five years later the novelty is wearing off. There's only so many times watching a badger scratch its privates or wren chicks depositing their faecal sacks into their mother's beak is appealing.

They have also introduced another new presenter, Martin Hughes-Games. With his long, flowing locks and soft voice I suspect he has been brought in to be the eye candy for female viewers.

Mr Hughes-Games is a very experienced natural history producer who has now made the move in front of the camera, but quite frankly his style just seems to reinforce the feeling that this programme is made more for the enjoyment of the people making it than its viewers.

I suspect the fact that Mr Oddie and the other long-term presenter Simon King have left the programme is a sign that they could see the end is nigh. Rats can always be seen leaving a sinking ship. (Now that would be fascinating natural history viewing.)

Bees creating a buzz on the farm

NIGHT OFF: The Bees are currently on tour, supporting Modfather Paul Weller

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

INDIE rockers The Bees buzz into Canterbury tomorrow night to play The Farmhouse.

The Isle of Wight outfit have agreed to play the intimate venue on a night off from supporting Modfather Paul Weller on his 2010 stadium tour.

The talented six-piece, famed for radio-friendly hits such as A Minha Menina, Wash in the Rain and the annoyingly infectious Chicken Payback, will perform all their classic tracks as well as new material from their fourth studio album, Every Step's A Yes.

A Farmhouse spokesman said: "The Bees are one of our favourite bands here at The Farmhouse, having graced the Sunday night line-up at Lounge On The Farm in both 2007 and 2008.

"Impossible to pigeon-hole, The Bees play a mix of americana, folk, blues, reggae and world music, that is danceable, grooving, uplifting and lazy all in the same breath.

"Guaranteeing smiles all round, they are a truly classic English act, likened to many, but comparable to none.

"Their new album is promising to be one of their finest yet from first listenings, which, in relation to Mercury-nominated Sunshine Hit Me and instant classic Free The Bees, is no small feat.

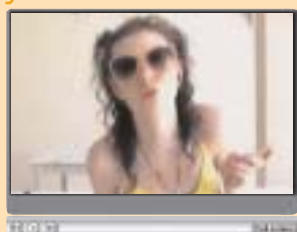

"Probably one of the biggest acts we've had join us at The Farmhouse, this is as exclusive and as intimate as it gets, and tickets are gonna buzz out the door for this, so don't sleep on it."

Next up at The Farmhouse is Last Japan on Friday, December 3, quickly followed by the legend that is DJ Format on Saturday, December 11.

BACKDROP: The beauty of skiing at Lake Tahoe is enhanced by stunning views over the lake on one side and the Nevada desert on the other

A Heavenly destination for winter sports and casinos

■ BY ROSAMOND HUTT

IT might be beach happy in the summer, but California also makes a fantastic skiing destination.

As our eight-man gondola inched its way up the mountain, the neon-lit casinos, motels and wedding chapels lining the highway shrank to toytown proportions, before vanishing entirely beneath a ridge.

At last, Heavenly was living up to its name. We found ourselves in a hushed, Narnia-esque world, with bear tracks criss-crossing the pine forest, branches creaking under layers of snow and Lake Tahoe's sparkling waters, far below, reflecting the peaks of the Sierra Nevada.

Holidaying in Heavenly, on the south shore of Lake Tahoe, which straddles the California/Nevada border on America's west coast, means wholeheartedly embracing the resort's dual personality.

By day, our group was 3,000 metres above sea level, skiing on immaculately-groomed runs, reveling in spectacular views of the cobalt blue lake on the Californian side and the rusty expanse of Nevada's desert on the other.

After dark, having abandoned any notion of traditional, gluhwein-fuelled apres-ski, we joined the punters trying their luck on the green baize tables in giant, Vegas-style casinos in Nevada.

At Harrah's, a casino-hotel with almost 5,000 square metres of gaming space, we watched Arthur 'Arty' Hervey entertaining the highrollers, swingers and bachelor parties with a repertoire of hits, ranging from Frank Sinatra to Justin Timberlake.

Rosamond Hutt was a guest of Virgin Holidays, which offers seven nights in California including flights to San Francisco, five nights at the 5V Embassy Suites Hotel in South Lake Tahoe and two nights at the Sheraton Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco, both on B&B, from £978. Connecting flights ex-Manchester, Glasgow and Edinburgh start at £99 return. Prices include car hire. Virgin Holidays reservations: 0844 557 3859 or www.virginholidays.co.uk.

One alternative to the casinos is to join the starry-eyed couples on a sunset dinner cruise aboard the Tahoe Queen, a paddleboat which steamed up and down the Mississippi in the early 20th century.

On another afternoon, our group swapped skis and snowboards for snowmobiles.

We roared along zig-zag trails, through forests of towering pines and aspens, to the top of the mountain to find such picture-perfect views of the lake that I half expected a stagehand to appear and start raising the backdrop.

Our ski instructor, Pat, warned us about Tahoe's abundant black bear population, and has caught several sifting through his rubbish bins. The backcountry is also home to chipmunks, raccoons, bobcats and mountain lions.

But hopes of spotting some of the local wildlife were dashed by the combined din of revving Yamaha engines and shrieks as our group grappled with unfamiliar steering and brakes.

Tahoe, the Native American word for big water, is the world's second biggest Alpine lake after Titicaca, and one of America's most popular skiing areas.

Bought in 2002 by Vail Resorts, which also owns four ski areas in Colorado, Heavenly is the largest of seven resorts dotted around the lake, attracting around a million ski and board visitors each year.

Its proximity to hubs like San Francisco in California and Reno in Nevada make the resort a huge hit with day-trippers and weekenders, as well as inter-state and long-haul visitors.

MOTORS NEWS

Citroën C4 offers more size and more space

ORDER books have opened for the all-new Citroën C4, which brings the French marque's more contemporary sculpted styling to its family hatchback.

Launched in five-door format in January it will be slightly larger externally than its predecessor, with enhanced aerodynamics due to front and rear spoilers.

However, it is roomier inside and the boot is claimed to be the largest in its sector. Prices start from £15,595 for the 1.4 VTi 95hp VTR petrol version.

Skoda voted What Car best manufacturer

MORE than 30,000 What Car? readers have voted Skoda the Best Manufacturer of 2010.

Skoda models also scored well in their categories, with the Octavia (sporty vRS model is pictured) first in the Small Family car group and second in the Estates category; the Roomster was fourth best MPV, the Yeti voted fifth best SUV and the Fabia was in the top 10 supermini rankings. The VW-owned Czech brand has also notched UK sales of 37,000 cars this year.

Landmark luxury here in black and white

LAND Rover has forewarned of a Landmark limited edition of the Discovery 4x4 available from January.

Priced at £46,945, and using black and white colour themes, LR says the new versions feature high-end interiors including an ivory leather interior option - a first for the Discovery.

Fitted as standard is the popular 3.0 litre SDV6 twin turbodiesel and the marque's famous Terrain Response, which equips the car for virtually all on-road/off-road driving situations.

GREAT ALL-ROUNDER: Plenty of space, good value, all the toys you need and a five-year guarantee thrown in - just don't let the badge snobs put you off this great family 4x4

Hyundai crossover is a no-brainer - guaranteed

CROSSOVER is the motor market buzzword and Hyundai was typically quick to voice it, with the ix35 launched earlier this year.

Replacing its more conventional Tucson SUV (sports utility vehicle), the ix35 is more compact, lighter on its feet and the sharp lines are reminiscent of the Ford Kuga - one of the smarter compact SUVs on the market.

It starts at just £16,195, yet brings alloys, air con, Bluetooth and iPod/USB connectivity, heated front and rear seats and door mirrors, leather steering wheel and gear knob and reverse parking sensors as standard, plus five years' roadside assistance and Hyundai's usual five-year/unlimited miles warranty.

But that keen entry price only buys you the front-wheel drive 1.6-litre petrol model - most buyers want the front-wheel drive diesels (from £17,395), though there is still demand for the full 4x4 2.0-litre diesel versions from £19,995, as tested here.

This engine pulls well and feels incredibly refined and, though it is now a well-worn cliché, you really would be hard-pressed to tell whether it was actually a petrol unit. It is also incredibly clean, with emissions attracting a road tax of just £90 a year.

The engine works well in 4x4 format too; worth a relatively paltry extra £1,000 against an equivalent front-wheel drive version, and a bargain here in flagship Premium form, bringing full-length panoramic glass sunroof, lots of interior chrome, cruise control, dual zone climate control, part-leather upholstery, smart roof rails and loads more.

The 4x4's fuel and tyre consumption cannot possibly be as good as that for a front-driven version; official figures show that fuel consumption drops less than two mpg for the 4x4, but most drivers will exploit the extra grip and its partnership with a well-sorted chassis that shows what a clunker the Tucson was.

The cabin is well finished, though hardly earth-shattering in design, while the roominess and boot capacity are impressive, and the flat rear footwell makes it a comfortable five-seater.

Chuck in that copper-bottom warranty and it's a no-brainer but for the branding, though badge snobbery is fast waning in these more realistic times...we hope.

Landlords advised on how to beat squatters

THE latest plans to give landlords information on combating squatters has been praised by an industry expert.

Paul Shamplina, founder of Landlord Action, said that housing minister Grant Shapps's plans were "encouraging" as they were taking a "proactive approach" to helping property-owners deal with illegal dwellers.

"We have also recently seen the stereotypical image of squatters brought into question.

"There has been an increase in squatting by young professionals who claim they cannot afford to rent, let alone buy a property, especially with the sharp rises in rent that we have seen of late," said Mr Shamplina.

He went on to say that landlords should ensure void periods were minimised and the property did not appear to be unoccupied, while reducing the ease of access to a home was also an important step.

In the new legal guide, homeowners were told that "the law is on their side".

Warning to tenants over cheap rent scams

TENANTS should beware fraudsters who advertise properties at a cheap rent but then disappear with the deposits paid.

The thieves use websites and genuine letting-agency photographs copied from the internet to dupe people into putting down payments of thousands of pounds.

The property ombudsman has received 5,000 complaints so far this year, while the National Fraud Intelligence Bureau issued an alert last month after receiving 95 complaints, up to 50 of which were in London.

Housing charity Shelter believes such fraud is more widespread than previously thought, particularly in London, where a buoyant lettings market and shortage of properties has seen rents rise by 20 per cent in the last year.

Buy-to-let market up as more seek to rent homes

■ BY NICK AMES

THE recovery of the buy-to-let market continued in the third quarter, according to recent figures which say it has been boosted by strong demand for rental property.

A total of £2.8 billion was advanced to investment landlords in the three months to the end of September.

This represents 33 per cent more than during the same period of 2009 and the highest level since the final quarter of 2008, according to the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML).

The buy-to-let market was hit hard by the original credit crunch and the recession, with many lenders withdrawing completely as they struggled to raise funds to lend.

Lending levels hit a low of £1.9 billion in the second quarter of 2009, but advances have been gradually moving upwards since then, as the market has recovered.

Despite the recent improvement, lending levels remain only a fraction of the record £12.4 billion advanced to buy-to-let investors during the third quarters of both 2006 and 2007.

The CML said the rise in lending during the third quarter, which was 12 per cent up on the previous three months, was driven by strong demand for rental property as many first-time buyers struggled to get the mortgages they needed to buy their own home.

Michael Coogan, director general of the CML, said: "We would expect buy-to-let demand to pick up further if current rising rental trends continue and house prices remain broadly stable.

SHORT SUPPLY: A strong demand for rented property has resulted in a rise in buy-to-let mortgages

"However, there is short-term uncertainty as a result of the unresolved debate on housing benefit and landlords' response to new limits.

"The bigger question is whether there will be sufficient supply side capacity to meet that demand, as the number of buy-to-let lenders dwindled in the credit crunch after 2007 and is yet to be fully restored."

Nigel Terrington, chief executive of buy-to-let lender Paragon, said the figures were "encouraging" and reflected higher confidence among landlords and lenders in the market.

"Although we are still a long way from normal market conditions and lending is low by historical standards, the market is heading in the right direction," he said.

Further figures revealing a stagnant mortgage market in September underlined the soaring demand for scarce rental properties.

There were 50,000 loans for house purchase, unchanged on August, although the value of loans fell by £200 million.

First-time buyers back on the scene

PROPERTY website Rightmove has suggested that first-time buyers (FTBs) are returning to the housing market.

According to a report by the property website, which questioned 25,584 potential buyers last month, first-time buyers are being encouraged by falls in house prices.

It found that some 33 per cent of FTBs expect the cost of property to be lower this time next year, up from just 20 per cent in the previous three months.

Meanwhile, just over a quarter of FTBs hope to purchase their first home in the next 12 months – up from 22 per cent in July, said Rightmove.

FTBs are key to the housing market and a shortage of them has meant a full recovery has yet to be seen.

They still need a hefty deposit of at least 25 per cent to secure a mortgage, according to figures, and this is why the numbers have been dwindling.

Finally, the survey also found that more than half of FTBs are aged between 25 and 34.

BACK ON FORM: Dover thrashed Tunbridge Wells at Crabble

Sharks bite back after recent losing streak

DOVER ended their winless run in emphatic fashion as they ran in seven tries to overwhelm struggling Kent rivals Tunbridge Wells at Crabble.

Having crumbled to a 35-0 defeat at Hove the previous weekend, the Sharks needed a good start and they got it when Buster Collins collected his own chip-kick to touch down, with Greg Phillips adding the conversion.

The Wells response was immediate as they crossed for an unconverted try in the corner, but Dover were not to be contained and Nathan Annakie collected Ben Murray's pass to extend their advantage.

Dover 46 Tunbridge Wells 12

Another Phillips conversion sent Dover 14-5 ahead and the fly-half, orchestrating play from the centre of the field, kicked a penalty before adding the extras to a Ben Crawford try shortly before the interval.

Against a free-flowing tide of Dover attacks, the Wells struggled to find their feet in the second-half and Jon Foster sprinted away to move them 24 points clear.

The Sharks had to withstand a brief period of Wells pressure but they turned possession over several times and skipper Martyn Beaumont cut through to score twice, with a try for the visitors sandwiched in between.

Ollie Faulkner had the final word as he scooped up possession from yet another Dover turnover to run 70 metres and touch down, sealing a comfortable win which keeps the Sharks seventh in London 1 South.

This weekend, Beaumont's side face one of the division's toughest away days as they make the trip to face second-placed London Irish Amateur.

Cup hopes dashed

Deal Town 1 Corinthian 3

THREE second-half goals ended Deal Town's hopes of progression in the Premier Division Cup as Corinthian stole the show at the Charles Sports Ground.

Having scrapped out a goalless draw in the first leg, the sides played out a predictably cagey opening quarter, with Lee Barnett's turn and shot the closest either came to an opener.

However, Deal were awarded a penalty midway through the first-half and when Mo Takaloo stepped up to confidently convert the spot-kick, it looked as though the hosts would go on to add to their tally.

However, Alistair Reed's shot deflected into the net just after the hour-mark and as Deal nerves increased, Danny Gannon crossed for Ciaran Mulville to put the visitors ahead.

The home side switched to 4-3-3 but their balls into the box amounted to nothing and Barnett lobbed home a third goal two minutes from time to send Deal crashing out at the first hurdle.

AN EVENTFUL week for Deal & Betteshanger ended on a high note as the Lions routed Purley to record back-to-back wins for the first time this season.

Pending an appeal, Deal are to be docked 15 league points after the abandonment of their game against East Grinstead but they responded in magnificent fashion on Saturday, running in nine tries.

DOVER Athletic are just 90 minutes away from a potentially lucrative FA Cup third-round tie against a top side – their game against League Two Aldershot Town on Saturday is all that stands in their way.

The Whites welcome the Shots to Crabble for one of the biggest games in the club's history. After their 2-0 triumph against Gillingham in the first round, supporters snapped up tickets, with Dover's 3,000 allocation sold out by Monday morning.

Dover boss Martin Hayes is confident his side have the ability to produce another giant-killing, but says they will have to play to their full potential to avoid disappointment.

He said: "We have got to have a go. We can't sit back as we don't train every day so we will go at them sensibly. It's going to be a massive crowd and occasion for the club and it won't be a problem getting the players up for the game. It's a shame we can only get just over 3,000 Dover fans in at Crabble, but it will be good and I'm looking forward to it."

"If they go and put in another 90 minutes like they did against Gillingham then we have got a chance of being in the third round. We would be in touching distance of playing someone really big. Aldershot are a good side but they are not unbeatable. We've got a chance and will give it our best."

Dover could include new signing Barry Cogan, who is eligible for Saturday's tie. The midfielder joined the club on a short-term deal from Crawley Town and Hayes believes his experience could be key.

He said: "He needs somewhere to play and we are happy to have him. He has settled in well and I hope he will grow into it. Against Aldershot we are going to need experienced players and people like Barry will make less mistakes than some of our players because of his experience."

Defender Tom Wynter and midfielder Luke T'Anson are likely to return to the squad, but strikers Elliott Charles and Jason Norville are both rated doubtful.

While the Whites' FA Cup hopes are still burning bright, the dream of progressing in the FA Trophy was shattered after a 2-1 defeat against Woking on Saturday.

A sluggish first-half cost Dover as Jerome Federico scored twice in the opening 20 minutes to stun the Crabble crowd. A Ben Hunt penalty breathed life into the tie in the second-half and Adam Birchall hit the post late on, but they couldn't find a way through as they crashed out of the competition at the first attempt.

Folkestone pin survival hopes on Dryden and Tait

FOOTBALL

Folkestone Invicta 1

THE FATE of Folkestone Invicta's season rests on the goalscoring form of Jimmy Dryden and Allan Tait.

The Seasideers have scored just nine goals in 15 league games this season, leaving the side in the Ryman Premier's relegation zone heading into last night's game at Margate.

But optimism has risen with a double boost in the last week. Dryden, who has barely played for 18 months due to injury, has returned to action and played an hour of the side's narrow FA Trophy defeat at Eastleigh on Saturday.

It is hoped he will form a prolific partnership with Tait, who has agreed to extend his temporary stay until the end of the season.

The news has delighted boss Neil Cugley, who believes if the pair stay fit they could prove the difference between staying up and an immediate return to Ryman Division One South.

He said: "A lot will depend on whether Jimmy and Allan click and get the goals we think they will. If they do we'll probably stay up and if not we'll probably go down. Allan's not had a very good season so far at Margate and then Horsham, but he knows he's wanted at Folkestone and I think he'll do us proud."

It was thought some players would have to be released to accommodate Tait, but the Invicta boss is not under pressure to make room in the budget.

"Not really, we haven't got that many to lose," he said. "To be fair to everyone at the club they don't want us to throw in the towel and go down. We've got to start getting some points now."

Saturday as Invicta travelled to an Eastleigh side in the Conference South's top half.

The higher-ranked team took the lead on 11 minutes when Richard Gillespie was allowed to bundle home a cross unmarked.

Eastleigh might have been further ahead at the break, but they missed several decent chances.

Invicta improved after the break, but were stung as Gillespie scored his second of the afternoon against the run of play.

The two-goal cushion only lasted five minutes, as the visitors struck back spectacularly. Winning a free-kick 30 yards out, Darren Smith tried his luck and unleashed an unstoppable shot which flew in the top corner.

Invicta finished the game strongly and dominated the final 15 minutes, but were unable to find a breakthrough to force a replay.

Cugley said: "For some of the younger players it was the biggest game they have played in and they can be pleased with how they performed."

TOOTHLESS: Folkestone failed to score against Eastbourne

Stones slip down the league after Eastbourne loss

Eastbourne 8 Folkestone 0

A LETHARGIC performance saw Folkestone fail to score for the first time this season in a disappointing trip to Eastbourne.

Any points would have at least earned the visitors the consolation of a bonus point, but they rarely exerted any pressure on their opponents' try line.

For the first 20 minutes the Stones dominated possession and territory. Significantly they could not convert it into points as poor decision-making saw three good opportunities wasted.

The scoreboard looked like it was not going to be troubled at all before half-time, but five minutes from the break Eastbourne struck. Making gains down the right wing they set up a series of rucks, which saw them reach the try line for a 5-0 lead.

Further chances came and went for Folkestone after the break. After the hour mark a series of well controlled drives from Eastbourne earned a penalty which was slotted over to make it 8-0.

The defeat, a third in four league outings, saw Folkestone slip further behind the promotion chase, with 13 points separating them from second place.

Folkestone take a break from the league this weekend as they travel to play Old Dunstonians in the Kent Cup on Saturday.

Hythe see off Wells in league return

FOOTBALL

Hythe Town 3 Tunbridge Wells 1

LEAGUE football returned to Reachfields for the first time in two months on Saturday as Hythe Town saw off a determined Tunbridge Wells.

Commitments in four different cup competitions meant Scott Porter's side had played eight games since their last Kent League engagement.

An improving Wells provided stern opposition, but Hythe took just six minutes to get off the mark as skipper Dave Cook headed home for his tenth goal of the season.

The hosts went on to play some of their best football of the season and looked dangerous every time they went forward. Craig Thompson fired wide, Brendon Cass had a shot brilliantly blocked and Wells goalkeeper Michal Czanner saved from Cook as Town looked set to run riot.

But Wells are making progress and had chances of their own at the other end. Keelan Mooney fired just over and then won a penalty on 31 minutes when he was brought down by goalkeeper Kieron Mann. The stopper avoided a red card due to the striker heading away from goal, but could do nothing about Andy McMath's spot-kick.

It remained 1-1 at half-time, but Hythe won the game with two goals in three minutes shortly after the resumption. A crisp half-volley from Lee Winfield put the hosts in front again, before Cass made it 3-1 with a cool finish.

Only good work from Czanner prevented a rout in the second-half and on the one occasion he was beaten, by Cass late on, the crossbar came to his rescue.

Hythe visit Erith Town on Saturday.
